

National recognition for Redhill Farm

National award-winning Redhill Farm Free Range Pork has been recognised as one of the UK's '50 Food Stars' by the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food & Rural Affairs. Elizabeth Truss MP selected Redhill Farm from hundreds of award-winners in the UK Food and Drink industry and invited Founders Jane and Terry Tomlinson to the launch of DEFRA's '50 Food Stars' initiative in London recently which included a high profile evening reception at No.11 Downing Street.

The new initiative has been launched to champion and celebrate the most exceptional and exciting food and drink businesses in the UK.

As a Defra 50 Food Star Redhill Farm has become part of a select group of like-minded quality independent food and drink businesses sharing experience and ideas and gaining support from world-leading experts and entrepreneurs in the UK food and drink industry.

Food Stars at No 11 Downing Street.

“We are incredibly proud to be considered as one of the rising stars in the UK food industry. Terry and I had an amazing day meeting many like-minded producers, many of whom we already knew as fellow national award winners. The launch was a great day of celebration of the achievements and successes of Britain's independent food and drink producers as well as plenty of inspiration to look to the future,” comments MD, Jane Tomlinson.

Elizabeth Truss MP commented, “As a country we've always been a place where sparky entrepreneurs come up with great innovations in food and drink, people with the ambition to grow and take on the world”.

ABOUT REDHILL FARM FREE RANGE PORK

Redhill Farm Free Range Pork is a national award-winning farmer and producer of free range pork on a small, family owned, farm near Gainsborough, Lincolnshire where good farming practices are at the heart of the business. Redhill Farm is now firmly established as one of the UK's leading free range pork producers achieving a Gold Great Taste award for every product it farms, produces and sells as well as being the current winner of 'Best Speciality Food for the Midlands & East Anglia'.